Serial No. 5

Part B for Dec. 1930

SUBJECT.

Amendment of Government Order of 1918 regarding the privileges that are granted to Representative Assembly Members who have served for 10 years.

Serial No.

Re: Exemption of Representative Assembly Members from the provisions of the Arms Act.

As a result of representations made at the Representative Assembly for recognition of the services rendered, for long periods, on the Assembly ~~in some suitable form~~, Government announced in June 1918 the grant of certain privileges to Representative Assembly Members of 20 years' standing. One of the privileges was the exemption of such members for life from the operation of the Arms Act."

A list of the persons who were eligible at that time to these privileges was also published in the same order, and it was stated that "similar lists will issue from time to time as need may arise."

2. Under Section 22 of the Mysore Arms Regulation Government can exempt, by notification in the Gazette, any person from the operation of any prohibition or direction in the Regulation. The exemptions for life granted in the Government Order of 1918 was not accompanied by any addendum to the Rules under the Arms Regulation, nor was the grant of the privilege to fresh persons formally notified under the Regulation. The procedure indicated by the Government Order of 1918 was the issue of fresh lists of additional names from time to time and this was usually done by issue of Government Orders which were also usually published in the Gazette and placed on Press Table

3 The Arms Rules were revised in 1926 and the discussions in the file (of the Protection Branch) which led up to the issue of these revised rules indicate an intention on the part of Government not to allow in future the privilege of exemption for life, in the case of Representative Assembly members of 20 years standing.

4 In a few cases that came up for consideration, while the Arms Rules were under revision, the question of granting exemption for life appears to have been "deferred for the present". After the promulgation of the revised Arms Rules, the question of amending the Standing Order of 1918 (which had been formally announced to the public) does not seem to have been raised ~~in specific orders and~~, subsequent cases continued to be dealt with under the same order. In 1927, one Ramappa of Challakere Taluk was given certain privileges under the Government Order of 1918, but no mention was made of "exemption for life" from Arms Regulation. The discussions in the file do not however give any indication as to why this privilege was omitted.

~~also given not included though the Government Order of 1918 was referred to.~~

~~There were no cases of grant of these privileges [illegible] 1926-1930, though the case of [illegible] Linganna of Honnali was under correspondence during~~

5 In a recent case however, (that of Mr. Gurulingappa of Honnali) all the privileges (including exemption for life from Arms Rules) referred to in the Government Order of 1918 were granted. Neither the present case-worker of the P.P.Section, nor myself was aware of the old discussions in connection with the revision of the Arms Rules and we were guided by the Standing Order of 1918 and the past two years' discussions in the further file, the previous notes in this connection indicated that the privilege of exemption from Arms Rules could also be given, if only 20 years service on Representative Assembly could be established, and there were no circumstances which could make us feel any doubts on the point. The same privileges were similarly extended to another case (of Mr. B. Kesavaiya of Chikmagalur) more recently.

G.O.dt. 15.9.30 H.C.(Linkage)

6 In the circumstances explained above, I am sorry the question was not specifically raised for orders when the two recent cases were disposed of.

7) The points for orders are:-

(1) Whether the Government Order of 1918 need be amended so as to confine the privileges to be granted, to grant of Khasa Hara and inclusion in class IV, Part II of Precedence List.

and (2) whether the exemption for life granted in the two recent cases may be withdrawn.

* Under the Arms Regn., Govt. have power to grant exemption & even the revised rules do not seem to prohibit it.

Submitted to His Highness.

Z

According to Government Order No.G.16600-52/G.M. 514-17-3, dated 4th June 1918, members of the Mysore Representative Assembly, who had served therein for over 20 years were entitled to the grant of the marginally noted privileges. In a number of cases all these privileges were given, with His Highness' approval, to members who were found eligible for the same.

1. Exemption for life from the operation of the Arms Act.
2. Khasa Hara at Palace Durbars.
3. Inclusion in Class IV of Part II of the Precedence List.

X

When the Mysore Arms Rules were revised in the year 1926, it was resolved that the privilege of exemption for life from the operation of the Arms Act referred to in the above order should be confined to the members of the Representative Assembly to whom it had been already given and that it need not be extended to other members of the Assembly.

W

Although this decision was embodied in the schedule to the revised Arms Rules issued in 1926, a corresponding amendment of the Government Order of 1918 was not simultaneously carried out. The result of this has been that in a few cases, exemption for life under the Arms Act was inadvertently recommended (and granted) along with the other two privileges, to certain gentlemen who had been members of the Representative Assembly for over 20 years.

M, D

It is therefore considered desirable to amend the Government Order of 1918 indicating clearly that, in future, the recognition of service of 20 years in the Representative Assembly will be confined to the privileges of Khasa Hara and inclusion of names in Class IV, Part II of Precedence List, and that it does not extend to an exemption for life from the provisions of the Arms Rules.

The papers are submitted to His Highness for gracious approval of the proposal made above.
